WHAT’S IN SEASON MOBILE APP
The application was developed for use on both iOS and Android devices. It is divided into five components:
- What’s in Season: Identify and view seasonal produce information using the visual display
- Buying in Season: View information about organisations that grow or distribute produce
- Planting in Season: Grow your own seasonal produce using available planting guides
- Eating in Season: Learn how to prepare seasonal produce using included recipes
- About: View information about Eat Well Tasmania

CONTENT MANAGEMENT SYSTEM
The web-based content management system was developed for Eat Well Tasmania staff members to manage the online-only content within the application. Key features include:
- Secure login page
- Separate component screens
- Simple creation and modification of content
- Hide or delete database entries using the intuitive on-screen interface
- Test content before submission using the preview feature
- Submitted content modifications instantly visible in the application on page refresh

PURPOSE
The main purpose of the What’s in Season project was to create a smartphone application to aid the client in their mission to provide local Tasmanian and Australian fruit and vegetable produce information to the public in a modern format. The application had to be educational at its core and focus on the identification, sale, and consumption of local produce.

To work with the smartphone application, a content management system was developed. The goal of this system was to ensure that information on eating, buying and planting in season produce can be kept up-to-date and modified in a simple and easy way.

CLIENT
Eat Well Tasmania Incorporated is a not-for-profit organisation that provides support and assistance for activities and projects that promote enjoyable, healthy eating. Eat Well Tasmania’s aim is to provide education on, and raise awareness of, Tasmanian fruit and vegetable consumption. They also advocate nutritional well-being in Tasmanian communities.
