NEWS FROM THE FACULTY OF SCIENCE, ENGINEERING AND TECHNOLOGY

National Science Week - August

National Science Week is the largest national festival in Australia, involving over a million people. It celebrates achievements in science, engineering, technology and innovation and provides an opportunity for everyone to participate in a whole range of exciting events that shows how science is interesting, challenging, important, and directly relevant to our society.

Tasmania will host another exciting National Science Week program this year, with events being held around the state. This year's line-up of guest presenters include plastic surgeon Dr Fiona Wood, mathematical comedian Simon Pampena, and the hilarious team from the Great Big Science Gig. With a range of talks, workshops, science shows, exhibitions, tours, films, fairs and open days on offer, there is something for everyone.

National Science Week in Tasmania is proudly supported by the Department of Economic Development, Tourism and the Arts, and the University of Tasmania, with many organisations involved in holding events during the week. A full program of events can be found at www.scienceweek.gov.au.

Young Tassie Scientists 2011

Young Tassie Scientists (YTS) are science professionals who are in the early stages of forging their careers in a variety of fields. They are passionate about their work and participate in the YTS program to help promote science in the community, and in 2011 will be visiting over 70 schools around the state.

The Young Tassie Scientists program aim is to engage students and to motivate them to think about science and the possibility of an inspirational career. They also provide teachers with the opportunity to strengthen their knowledge of current research. Read more about this year’s Young Tassie Scientists at www.youngtassiescientists.com.

SIDNEY NOLAN: THE GALLIPOLI SERIES EXHIBITION

Academy Gallery
School of Visual and Performing Arts (SVPA)
5 August – 16 October
Monday – Friday 9am – 5pm

1956 Sidney Nolan began the Gallipoli series stimulated by his interest in the Trojan Wars, personal memories from childhood and the tragic death of his brother at the end of World War Two.

In 1978 Nolan donated 251 works from the Gallipoli series to the Australian War Memorial. This exhibition will include almost sixty paintings, drawings and gouaches from Nolan’s Gallipoli. The exhibition includes a selection of Nolan’s large paintings and drawings of soldiers fighting, explosions, horses, gun carriages and men in pursuit of leisure activities, which will be supported by contextual photographs and text. Also included are Nolan’s large portraits in crayon of quintessentially Australian types; sporting wide brimmed hats and smoking cigarettes. In a few energetic lines Nolan captures their youthful brashness, innocence and exhaustion.

Sidney Nolan: the Gallipoli series is toured by the Australian War Memorial as part of the Academy Gallery Master Artist Program.

EXHIBITION VISITS AND SCHOOL TOURS

School Groups are welcome to tour the Exhibition during Open Hours.

Please contact the School of Visual and Performing Arts (SVPA) to schedule your visit on (03) 6324 4400

Tours of the SVPA can also be arranged to complement your students’ experience prior to or after visiting the exhibition.

We do remind our visiting School Groups that they must register with Reception upon arrival.

FREE GUIDED TOURS

The School of Visual and Performing Arts (SVPA) is offering guided tours of Sidney Nolan: the Gallipoli Series Exhibition to interested Schools and Colleges, led by our knowledgeable Academic Staff.

Tours are available each Tuesday of the Exhibition between the hours of 9.00am – 2.30pm, beginning with Tuesday 16th August.

For more information and to book a free guided tour for your students, please contact the SVPA on 6324 4400.
