annual giving 2011

JANE FRANKLIN HALL

Jane Franklin Hall continues as a self-funded residential community for students of the University. As a not-for-profit organisation, the College relies upon the support of its current and past residents for its future.

The College has arranged some loan funding to construct a link building to join the existing Horton and Aldridge buildings. We hope you will consider supplementing these funds to assist the construction.

As an independent charitable entity, the College is not eligible for any grant funding from government sources to further develop the accommodation at Jane Franklin Hall. With high levels of occupancy being achieved because of the demand for student accommodation in Hobart, the College is able to generate funds for ongoing maintenance however the challenge is to be able to upgrade the existing older infrastructure and to strategically develop the site in accordance with the Jane Franklin Hall Council's master plan.

The building of this link building between Horton and Aldridge enables a modest expansion of the number of rooms (10) which will improve future financial viability. Importantly this new building will contain two new modern bathrooms and with the borrowed funding the plan makes provision for refurbishing the existing Horton bathrooms, the design of which dates back to 1969.

The monies raised by this appeal will greatly assist the College as the donations will reduce the amount of borrowed funds and the interest payable, during the life of the loan over the next ten years.
