
MEDIA LAB USAGE GUIDELINES

PRIORITY OF ACCESS

The Media Lab is a locally managed learning space (LMLS) managed by the School of English, Journalism and European Languages. The space was established in 2007 as a teaching and learning hub for the Journalism, Media and Communications (JMC) discipline.

Priority of access is given to JMC classes, seminars and workshops, and in particular those classes, seminars and workshops that rely on the unique facilities provided by the lab. Other bookings may be made at the discretion of the JMC discipline coordinator.

In addition to these bookings access may be granted to current JMC students, on a case by case basis, where their assessment has a practical Media Lab related component.

STUDENT ACCESS

Access will be granted to current JMC students on a case by case basis. In all cases approval from the relevant unit or course coordinator must be sought prior to requesting activation of an access card via the School Administration office.

Jump to: “Request for Media Lab Access” form.

The standard access granted is 7 days a week from 8am to 6pm daily. However, access cannot always be guaranteed at these times as teaching and other bookings will, from time to time, take priority. The duration of access will be dependent on the student’s enrolment and the purpose of their access. These access rights may vary depending on the unit you are studying.

The Media Lab teaching timetable can viewed online at:

(Venue name = SB.ARTS102.LAB)

More information about access cards is available here:

Students found to be illegally providing access to other people will have their own access suspended or terminated.

SECURITY

Entrance to the Media Lab is controlled by access card. This system is managed by the University of Tasmania's Security staff and all entrances and attempted entrances are logged.

In addition, the Media Lab is surveyed by 24-hour security cameras and an after-hours security patrol.

The safety and security of the Media Lab's facilities, as well as the safety and security of the people using the facilities is taken very seriously and any breaches will be subject to University and/or Police disciplinary action.

Security breaches should be reported to the Security office or Emergency Services immediately.
