The UTAS Conservatorium of Music is one of Australia’s most progressive music training institutes. We know all about putting quality on show. After all, live music-making is at the core of the Conservatorium’s activities. Specialist areas of study include musical theatre, classical music, jazz, orchestral studies and even rock music and music technology. The quality of our performing arts program is internationally outstanding with ARIA award nominations, competition prizes, national broadcasts and recordings and international student successes to prove it. Study can be undertaken in a range of different courses, from associate degrees through to the postgraduate level. And generous scholarships will add to your kitty.
