1 MEMBERS ONLY

1.1 * Members Only
The Chancellor opened the meeting, welcoming members and congratulated the two ministerial appointees, Tara Howell and Sheree Vertigan AM on their recent appointment by the Minister for Education for second terms on University Council.

University Council met in closed session without the Vice-Chancellor and discussed the following:

Work Health and Safety
Members reflected on the Officers Briefing on Work Health and Safety due diligence held the previous day, and discussed the importance of understanding and being assured that as officers they are exercising due diligence to ensure the University complies with its duties and obligations under the Work Health and Safety Act (Cth) 2011

Members discussed the role of the Audit and Risk Committee in monitoring compliance against the WHS Act and requested that the Committee bring to Council a framework that clearly sets out for Council the University’s WHS performance against the mandatory requirements and includes clear accountabilities and consequences for actions. Such a framework would be used to inform WHS decisions for the institution and provide an appropriate standard of due diligence required for officers to discharge their WHS duty. Members agree that compliance reporting must meet the six defined areas of due diligence as referenced under the WHS Act.
Action: Audit and Risk Committee to provide Council with a draft Framework that clearly sets out for Council the University’s WHS performance against the mandatory requirements and includes clear accountabilities and consequences for actions.

Australian Universities Accord

Following the release of the Australian Universities Accord Final Report, members agreed that it would be useful to understand and map the University’s current performance against the specific recommendations outlined in the Accord Report. Members considered the linkages between student retention and equity and agreed that this was important data to understand the current context for the University. Discussion also focused on the potential for the development of a ‘Tasmanian Accord’ that worked across all levels of education to capture how the State would respond and collaborate to achieve the aims of the Accord. The Chancellor noted the upcoming one-to-one meetings scheduled between herself and members of Council and that it was her intention to use these to seek feedback on the performance of Council and the Vice-Chancellor as part of the agreed annual process but that it would be a useful opportunity to better understand expectations and priorities for 2024, with the Universities Accord and the University’s strategic direction as key drivers.

University Council Workplan

The University Council Workplan would continue to be updated to reflect the ongoing conversations on the Universities Accord and its impact on the development of the Universities Strategic Direction. Members requested that the Workplan be utilised to map out and plan for timing of key discussions and decisions that University Council would need to consider in 2024.

It was agreed that it was time for individual members to focus on pursuing engagement opportunities within their local communities and networks. To support this work, members discussed helpful resources that could be made available to them such as relevant data snapshots relating to teaching, research, and community impact. Members requested that the University Secretary recommend an appropriate way to capture and share insights and feedback from these engagement opportunities to allow Council to identify emerging areas of concern or interest from across stakeholder groups.

Action: University Secretary to advise on the use of an appropriate process/tools for capturing and sharing feedback from all community and stakeholder engagement opportunities.

1.4 Update on 2024 External Reviews of University Council and Academic Senate

University Council noted the proposed change to the plans for undertaking the external reviews of University Council and Academic Senate and supported the new plan to engage an independent expert to conduct both reviews concurrently in 2024. Members noted that the benefits of engaging a single expert for both reviews included a holistic view of all aspects of the University’s governance (both academic and corporate) and that receiving a single set of recommendations would be advantageous. It was further noted that the scope for the external review of University Council would not be impacted by the proposal and that the relationship between Council and Academic Senate was always intended to be examined. The process of identification of a suitable independent expert had begun and once an external provider was identified, there would be opportunity to further refine and negotiate the scope of the project and specific areas of focus for the review.

3. COUNCIL EXECUTIVE WORKING DISCUSSION

Rick Inglis, Phil Leersen, and Poppy Fay joined the meeting at 10.25am

3.1 Universities Accord Update
University Council held a working discussion to consider the recent release of the Australian Universities Accord Final Report, noting the primary objective of the Accord was to see a universal higher education system that provides all Australians with the opportunity to obtain higher education. Discussion focused on the four key strategies set out in the Accord to meet this challenge, including the expansion of pathways education, removal of equity barriers, strengthening regional education and the creation of more flexible course structures.

Members noted that overall, the direction set by the Accord was supportive of the strategic direction of the University and that whilst there was no detail on budget and funding model for the vision of the high-quality system, the report’s recommendation for the creation of an Australian Tertiary Education Commission (ATEC) to coordinate and manage the overall objectives may also be utilised as a pricing authority and the entity that negotiates university compacts that set domestic student numbers. Whilst the Government’s response would likely not be released for some months, it was recognised that the Accord provided a new policy context for the sector, and the University would be reflecting carefully on the opportunities and challenges presented, the results of which would inform the University’s work to refresh its strategic direction.

3.2 Refreshing our Strategic Plan – Synthesis of Staff Strategy Session Contributions
University Council held a working discussion to consider feedback from staff strategy sessions held as part of the refresh of the institutional Strategic Plan. More than 80 local-level staff strategy workshops had been undertaken to discuss what the future University could look like in response to the University’s global and local context. Over 1,000 individual contributions had been provided across five themes including the University’s approach to sustainability, learning and teaching, research, community engagement and how the University could best organise to deliver on its mission. It was noted that the results indicated that there was a high degree of alignment between staff and the University’s key strategic themes, including focussing on impact in all we do, continuing to build on the University’s role as a sustainability leader, lifting the student experience and continuing to evolve teaching approaches to meet the diverse needs of student cohorts.

Members noted that the synthesis of the staff contributions at the strategy sessions would shortly be shared with all staff for further consideration and feedback.

The Chair Audit and Risk Committee highlighted the following areas of interest from the Compliance Report:

- The University was liaising with the Tasmanian Department of Justice in relation to draft regulations to widen the scope of registration requirements for working with vulnerable people.
- The Audit and Risk Committee continued to work with management to ensure that the level and type of information included in the Compliance Report in relation to incidence of sexual assault and sexual harassment (SASH) was sufficient, specifically in relation to trend data analysis.
- The Audit and Risk Committee would work with management on ensuring the right framework for Work Health and Safety risk reporting and monitoring through the Compliance Report, noting the importance of separating the psychosocial risk reporting from SASH.

Members discussed the focus on student access and safety through the Australian Universities Accord Final Report and the impacts of the National Action Plan to End Violence Against Women and Children 2022-2023, noting that the findings of the recently completed review of the University’s activity in responding to and preventing gender-based violence, undertaken by Lynn Walker would be provided to University Council imminently. 8.2 * Workplace Gender Equality Agency Reporting
University Council noted that following the passing of the Workplace Gender Equality Amendment (Closing the Gender Pay Gap) Bill 2023, the Workplace Gender Equality Agency (WGEA) had publicly reported employer pay gaps in median earnings for the first time in 2024, including gender composition by pay quartiles, and will report gaps in average earnings from late 2024/early 2025. The results of the recently released Industry Benchmarking Report indicated that the University had made progress towards eliminating the gender pay gap from 8.4% in 2020-22 to 6.9% in 2022-23, and that these results placed UTAS second only to the University of New South Wales for the higher education sector.
Members noted the results of the analysis undertaken to understand the key drivers of the gender pay gap at the University, specifically that whilst women and men were represented relatively evenly in the academic workforce, women were more represented in the professional workforce and as academic positions are on average higher paying than professional support roles, and that this was a significant contributor to the difference between women's and men's average earnings at the University. Other contributing factors noted included more women participating in part time work across all levels of academic and professional workforce and a lower representation of women at senior leadership roles relative to our overall workforce. Members noted that whilst women currently comprise around 60% of the University’s workforce, women occupy 53% of senior leadership roles, and 40% of senior academic roles.

University Council discussed the proposed suite of initiatives being considered and prioritised to eliminate the University’s gender pay gap including the implementation of academic career development programs in 2024, continuing to develop and enable new approaches toward workplace flexibility and improving the academic promotions process to reduce barriers to career progression for women and increase the proportion of women applying for promotion. Members also recognised the recent changes to the provision of Parental and Carer’s leave which supported men to take up flexible work options should they wish to.

Resolution 01-03-2024-UC-8.2
University Council noted the WGEA Executive Summary and Industry Benchmarking Reports and noted the University’s gender pay gap analysis outlined in the Understanding our Gender Pay Gap report.
