Maritime careers on display at expo

Students at the Australian Maritime College, a specialist institute of the University of Tasmania, will have the opportunity to meet industry representatives and investigate future career options at the 2017 AMC Careers Expo.

The annual event brings together maritime-sector organisations and students interested in finding out more about the career opportunities on offer.

Participating companies this year include ANL Container Line, the Department of Defence, Defence Force Recruiting and DP World Australia.

AMC Principal, Professor Neil Bose, said that the Careers Expo successfully connects industry partners with the College's future graduates, whose career-relevant courses make them in demand world-wide.

"The AMC Careers Expo is an excellent forum for our students to learn about the range of careers in the maritime field, and for industry representatives to promote their organisations and identify new talent," Professor Bose said.

"The qualifications we offer — across the disciplines of coastal and ocean seafaring, maritime engineering, and maritime business and international logistics — correlate closely with global demand, leading to excellent outcomes for our graduates."
