

*Are you living with dementia?
Would you like to share your ideas?*

The Wicking Dementia Research and Education Centre is working to improve the lives of people living with dementia and their carers.

We invite interested people living with dementia, or problems with memory and thinking, to attend a short presentation about what we do. You are welcome to bring a support person.

We would then like to discuss with interested people how they might like to be involved in our work and contribute to our future directions and planning. This will take approximately one and a half hours.
